Summer Greetings!!!

Thanks for picking up this copy of The Islands Marketplace. This free buy and sell magazine is gaining popularity each and every week. We are constantly being stopped on the street and given great credit for doing a good job on this much needed community service. We have become experienced at matching buyers to sellers in our little community. It is a nice feeling to be so helpful when people are looking for a place to rent, needing a service provided, or wanting to advertise their items for sale. Unfortunately we are also only human and do make mistakes. Two of which occurred in our last issue include forgetting to publish a Grief Recovery Group and a Garage Sale. Our apologies to all concerned for the inconvenience.

The time has come around again for another exciting weekend at the Saltspring Island Fall Fair. We all look forward to a sunny weekend at the Farmer's Institute on Rainbow Road, where the fair will take place. This is an event which my 5 year old talks about all year long. This weekend she will be attending with her allowance in hand to spend on the children's rides and games. She loves to have her face painted, and visit the petting zoo. Her favorite ride is the swing that spins her through the air, with her shoes flying in all directions. With live music and some of the islands most delicious food to devour, it is worth buying a two-day pass so the fair can be enjoyed both days. With never-ending excitement one can feast on Saltspring Lamb, Salmon burgers and corn on the cob, while listening to local music such as Valdy, Bill Henderson and Alan Moberg, to name a few. The theme this year is "A Timeless Tradition" and many exhibits will feature this in their creative displays. My personal favorite is the photography contest. Games, raffles and demonstrations include cowpie bingo, horse shows, the sheepdog trials and zucchini races which is very popular with the younger crowd. It is bound to be very busy with many off-island visitors attending. With the large crowds, it is a good idea if you have small children to keep a close eye on them, and establish a plan if you do get separated. Of course, no pets are allowed on the fair grounds, other than those in the exhibits or contests. Parking is a bit of a challenge on the narrow road, so we usually park in town somewhere and take the shuttle bus, which drops us right in front of the entrance. The Fall Fair is a great place to visit with friends. It truly is a community event, with so many hard-working volunteers involved. Thanks to all those who have made it "A Timeless Tradition" which we all look forward to each and every year.

Enjoy this issue - see you at the Fair - Sandi Poystila

High Gas Prices and What We Can Do About It

By Roy E. Klienwachter

Driving into work this morning I noticed the gas prices have jumped again.

Like most days when I notice the price has jumped, I just shrug my shoulders and declare them "bastards." I think to myself surely the government must be aware of this atrocity, why aren't they doing anything? Then I remember how much they are making on each litre as taxes-a whopping 30%. I guess they are not in too much of a hurry to give up this windfall.

What really triggered this article is a news cast. An oil representative when asked about the rising cost of oil said, "People are willing to pay the higher prices." I heard this same statement from another oil company rep. years ago when we had the conversion from leaded to unleaded gas. They left something out of the gas and were charging us higher prices. Once again when asked the response was, "people are willing to pay higher prices for it."

Nothing triggers me faster than to hear this kind of arrogance. What they are really saying is-no one is blowing up our gas stations and refineries, so they must be happy with paying the higher prices. Now, I understand cost and profit as I have been in business all my life. However, when I see the outrageous profits from large corporations such as gas companies, banks, and software companies-it's easy to see they are simply charging too much. They will come up with all sorts of excuses, and none of them explains the outrageous profits.

I am not fooled by their explanations.

In the case of the gas companies who seem to be in bed with each other, there is no where to turn as an alternative. If you don't want to pay for the higher prices you can't go to the competition because there isn't any. WE ARE NOT WILLING TO PAY and we are not willing to blow up gas stations and refineries to demonstrate our dissatisfaction.

There will come a point when the conglomerates push too hard and people will start to react. By that time they will have accumulated a very large surplus and will give back a few cents a litre to pacify the rebels.

Now the company executives are correct in saying people are willing to pay because they have not reacted in ways the companies can understand and appreciate. The real issue is with the consumer not the companies. Consumers have so much power and control over these companies but they have given up their power to governments and regulatory bodies who have a vested interest in higher prices.

The simply truth is, if you don't want to pay high prices for gas and other products-don't buy them. In a very short period of time the companies will be giving away their products. No customers-no products to sell-no business. As far as the oil companies go, even if everyone stopped using their petroleum driven machines for just one day a week, I suspect it would bring them to their knees in a very short time.

The balance of power has always been with the consumer to control prices. However, it is the waste of these products that create a greater demand for the products, and the law of supply and demand (greed) comes into effect. I suspect there are very few people who could not restructure their lives to not drive one day a week and make it an ongoing way of life (keep up the pressure). Companies will react to consumer pressure, but they also know that consumers will not keep up the pressure for very long-high prices are soon forgotten after the temporary relief has been dribbled out by the money grabbers.

Somewhere along the way we have convinced ourselves we need their products, and we have structured our lives around them. The industrial revolution has made us slaves to buying and wasting and it is catching up with us. Can you really afford to pay high prices for gas? Do you really need to pay for overpriced software and operating systems which don't even work correctly? Do you need to pay $50 a person at a restaurant plus 20% for the tip? Has the good life really made you happy?

Here is an opportunity. You can take back your power, freedom and individuality by reacting strongly to these wrong doings. The reward you will receive will be the satisfaction of doing something, anything, and encouraging others to follow your example.

It is also OK to do nothing if you are happy to pay too much for your products and services. However, if the price gouging is increasing your stress levels - take action. It could be as simple as showing this story to another or writing your own story. You could designate one day a week you will not consume gas or oil which would make a huge impact when others follow. This article is about motivating you and others to do something positive about something you don't like. It is about being powerful and demonstrating that power in your actions.

You don't have to become an eco-terrorist or blow up refineries and gas stations. What you have to do is something that demonstrates positively that you do not agree with their statements - that does not include complaining or whining.

If you disagree with price gouging and rip offs, and you want to do something positive then pass this story on to someone else. What you can do in the next five minutes will irrefutably demonstrate to you where you stand. Like many people you can choose to do nothing-there is nothing wrong with that if you can honestly live with it.

ARIES Mar 21st - Apr 20th

Jupiter is the planet in the news this week. This, the largest member of our solar system, ends a backward drag, forges a great angle to the Sun but also squabbles with three planets lined up in your relating zone. Your enthusiasm can be infectious, but when it comes to people who are powerful or in charge, stay aware of what they expect of you Aries.

TAURUS Apr 21st - May 21st

Someone can seem so very attractive but in this haze of sultry fascination you may overlook that you and they are very different, in some key but important ways. That's not to say you should drop your interest, simply that you should be realistic. If there are other mutual areas that can grow over time, these initial corners of difficulty may be overcome.

GEMINI May 22nd - Jun 21st

Your personality can shine out, but what could see you stumble is a family difficulty or because you find yourself caught between two friends who are at odds. In terms of your own hopes and aspirations, you can feel jollier than for many a Moon. Business and property matters can also pick up. If you need to get something moving, you certainly can.

CANCER Jun 22nd - Jul 23rd

People see you as being a natural around the emotional sphere Cancer, but that doesn't mean everything always goes exactly to plan. This week is a point in case. You can be very optimistic about one new involvement and yet an existing tie can suffer if you're unwilling to look at some important issues or try to fob off the other person's point of view.

LEO Jul 24th - Aug 23rd

This can be a good week for communication and career prospects, fortune can drop too, but all this requires you to measure every single word. If you're attending an interview, you're likely to be able to articulate your skills and experiences succinctly. But if this goes from competent confidence, to gushing, don't be tempted to embellish your background.

VIRGO Aug 24th - Sep 23rd

You can power forwards and sense you're on a role. This could also see you inclined to be a little more extravagant. The home can be an area you want to lavish money on or perhaps you'll spoil your significant half or someone new you meet. If you want to increase your earnings, something that's part-time, flexible or home-based could all appeal.

LIBRA Sep 24th - Oct 23rd

Are you sometimes overly attuned to the reactions of others? If so, in some ways this would be a good thing, whilst in others perhaps you should show less deference. Yet a careless comment could lead someone to think that you're insensitive but should you be fearful of offending people? Balance your growing new energy, with canny perceptive tact.

SCORPIO Oct 24th - Nov 22nd

On the face of it, things can seem bright and breezy. A long held hope can show signs of shaping up and one group of friends can lift your spirits. However, an interesting offer can almost create a dilemma. Don't ignore your deeper instincts in making a final decision because whilst you may want to be daring, underlying issues do need considering.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 23rd - Dec 21st

People who tend to have a narrow view of life can prove exasperating. You're aware that you need to play life's games and meet everyday expectations but you may muse why should you do this in your personal life? But then who's setting the rules here, for there's a risk that you'll rebel against others' expectations and yet want to force yours on them.

CAPRICORN Dec 22nd - Jan 20th

Redouble your efforts to expand your world. Travel can feature but this could be linked to an exciting new work role. Talks with a big organisation can also figure but for now this fact may have to stay under wraps. Yet an emotional issue should be kept in perspective. Remind yourself, that from time to time it's only natural to feel vulnerable.

AQUARIUS Jan 21st - Feb 19th

This is a week to break rigid habits. These could include those things that you've clung on to for longer than you can care to remember - out of routine as much as anything. Some doors may also be closing in your world but others can spring open. Anything that utilises your natural psychology skills or sees you interacting with unusual cultures can help you grow.

PISCES Feb 20th - Mar 20th

You can find yourself really admiring someone and with partnerships having been the hot topic the last few years, you could still be searching for the perfect foil. Indeed be it in business or personally, you can have some interesting conversations, but it's not what people say that counts as much as what they really mean. Stay attuned to this fact Pisces.
