Giving Thanks

Thanks for picking up another great issue of The Islands Marketplace. This is the last issue of our third year and we are super excited to start our fourth year with our next issue out Oct. 16.

With Thanksgiving next weekend I am finding that there is lots to be thankful for.

First I am thankful for being part of such a great community. It is so nice to be able to go into town and be greeted with smiling, happy faces almost everywhere I go. We are so lucky to have generous and giving people in our lives.

This includes those who help with our children, from school and theatre teachers to swim coaches, to Sparks leaders and caring babysitters. It includes everyone who has worked so hard to give us such a cool fall fair, it includes people in our community that offer their services from gas, groceries and everything in between. It makes shopping local very easy.

We are thankful for the support of our business advertisers, whom we could not create this magazine without. I am fortunate to be able to apply my creative design skills to help local businesses and organizations with their advertising needs. It is my goal to do my best in each and every issue, to offer free classified ads, valuable information and promote community events and entertainment in a clean and easy format.

I am very thankful for the writers and staff of The Islands Marketplace for all their efforts and hard work. Again, couldn't do it without them. It is so great to see the magazine grow and to have people who are excited to be part of the little community paper that can and does make a difference in people's lives. With your help we will continue to grow and expand. We are happy to welcome writer Tracey Supina and sales rep Jan Harvey to our Marketplace team.

This Thanksgiving don't forget those people and things in your life that make it all worthwhile. Take time to smell the roses and find joy in everything that you see, hear and do. Not just on Thanksgiving, but every day... it makes the obstacles of life easier to handle. Happy Thanksgiving ~

– Sandi Poystila

What's with The Code??

The numbers at the end of every classified ad in The Islands Marketplace is a date stamp showing when the last issue is that the ad will be printed. For example: 10-02 means that the ad will not run after Oct. 2 (this issue). Each ad is usually placed for four issues, or until someone asks us to take it out. Most NEW ads in this issue have the code 11-13 (Nov. 13 is the last issue that the ad will run.)

Salt Spring Eyecare to give sight to people in need

Local optometrist, Dr. Andrea Varju will help transform lives of those without access to even basic eye care services by participating in the World Sight Day Challenge. Dr. Varju will make a donation and celebrate the World Sight Day Challenge in her practice throughout October. Funds raised will help the estimated 670 million men, women and children globally who are blind or vision impaired simply because they do not have access to an eye exam and a pair of glasses.

In many developing countries there are not enough trained eye care personnel and there is insufficient infrastructure to support these desperately needed eye care services. Optometry Giving Sight, the organizer of the World Sight Day Challenge, funds the solution by supporting programs that offer not only eye exams and glasses, but that establish vision centres and train local eye care professionals in communities with little or no access to eye care services.

"I am proud to join thousands of optometrists around the world in making a difference", said Dr. Varju. "The patients I see every day have a number of sophisticated vision care services and vision correction options available to them. Yet there are millions of people around the world who don't even have access to the basics - an eye exam and eyeglasses. There are millions of children who can't see at school and adults who can't work to provide for their families. We are proud to be able to support Optometry Giving Sight in its efforts to bring sight to people in countries with little or no access to quality vision care."

Dr. Varju was inspired to hear how 23-year-old, Kanchana, received her first pair of glasses the day after she got married. She had struggled to see clearly until visiting a newly-opened Vision Centre in a remote area of Sri Lanka. A locally-trained Vision Technician provided Kanchana with her first eye exam and recommended the glasses that will enable her to enter her new life with clear vision for the future.

By the end of 2009, Optometry Giving Sight will have distributed $3 million through its partners to help screen and provide basic eye care services to more than 1.7 million people, train 1,550 mid-level eye care personnel, and create 101 vision centers/optical workshops. The funds will be directed to projects in Sri Lanka, Southern Africa, East Timor, Latin America, Indigenous Australia, Papua New Guinea, as well other parts of the world.

It can cost just $5 to provide an eye examination, a pair of glasses and residual training to local staff in countries where eye care services are few. This alone could be enough to save someone from the injustices of poverty. Dr. Varju invites her patients to make a donation at her practice during October. Optometry Giving Sight guarantees that 85% of all funds raised by optometrists and their patients go directly to programs that give sight to those most in need.

Salt Spring Eyecare is located at 158A Fulford-Ganges Rd. Call 250-537-4356 to schedule an appointment.

11TH ANNUAL APPLE FESTIVAL

Celebrating Heritage Apples

The Salt Spring Island Apple Festival is taking place on Sunday, October 4 from 9am to 5pm at the Fulford Hall with openings at various orchards. In it's 11th year, this year's theme is "Celebrating Heritage Apples – Taking you back into the past."

Organizers and apple farmers are please to report that they had over 1500 participatns fall in love with apples last year. Salt Spring Island has over 350 varieties of apples grown organically on 17 very diverse farms, each one being a unique adventure.

The sight and taste of our organic apples will bring the real kid out in you and you will never see apples the same way again. Come for a day and discover 139 years of apples.

It's your chance to visit Apple Heaven while still on earth! For more info contact Harry Burton at 250-653-2007 or visit: www.appleluscious.com or www.saltspringmarket.com/apples/

Great advice to make life a little easier...

THANKSGIVING OFFERINGS

Thanksgiving is here again and I think we all have a bountiful crop of Apples this year here on Saltspring, and big ones to boot! If you can manage the time to harvest that huge crop and all those loaded down apple trees, here a some fine recipes to help you on your way...

I know all of us have our own favourite apple pie recipe, but this is the best pie I can recommend. The aroma that fills the air is heavenly. Serve with cheese and /or ice cream.

APPLE FILLING

- 1 cup Granulated sugar
- 1/2 tsp Ground Cinnamon
- 2 tsp Lemon juice
- 2 tbsp All-purpose flour
- 5 cups Cooking apples(McIntosh is good)
- 1/4 - 1/2 tsp Granulated sugar

Roll the pastry and fit into 9 inch pie plate. Roll out top crust.

In a large bowl combine first amount of sugar, flour and cinnamon.

Add apple and stir. Turn into the pie shell. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Dampen edges of the pastry and place the second crust on top.

Trim and crimp to seal. Then cut some slits in the top.

Sprinkle with the remaining sugar. Bake on the bottom shelf of the oven at temperature of 350 F /180 C - for about 45 minutes until browned and the apples are tender. Yields 1 pie.

Note: Granulated sugar may be substituted with half brown or all brown sugar.

PASTRY RECIPE:

- 5 cups All-purpose flour
- 2 tsp Salt
- 1 Egg
- 1 cup cold water
- 3 tbsp Brown Sugar
- 1 lb Lard, fairly cold
- 2 tbsp Vinegar

Measure flour, sugar, salt and baking powder into a large bowl. Cut in the lard until the size of tiny peas.

Break the egg into measuring cup. Beat with a fork. Add vinegar. Pour in enough water to measure 1 cup.

Pour a little at a time over flour mixture, tossing and stirring with the fork until all the liquid is absorbed.

Shape into ball. Divide into 4 flattish balls. Wrap and refrigerate.

Store in refrigerator up to 2 weeks. Or freeze to have a continuing supply on hand.

Yields: up to 6 to 8 shells.

Hope all of you have a happy, peaceful and contented Thanksgiving!!

Time to Renovate & Redecorate is NOW!

By Sandi Poystila

It's true that most of us are feeling the effects of a slower economy these days, so why is this fall the best time to do a home renovation project?

Typically, when we experience a recession, it means that most retail stores, home supply and building stores will offer discounts and deals to keep the merchandise flowing. This is a great reason to check out the deals offered at our local building supply stores, Windsor Plywood and Slegg Lumber.

Another excellent reason to get your renovation started now is to take advantage of the Home Renovation Tax Credit that the government is offering everyone who has a renovation done between January 2009 and February 2010. There is only four months left to take advantage of the 15% non-refundable tax credit, which can be claimed on eligible expenditures of more than $1,000 but not more than $10,000. The maximum tax credit that can be claimed to reduce your federal income tax is $1,350.

From our own recent experience of renovating our workshop into an office/music studio, we have discovered that these "quick little jobs" actually end up taking more time and more money than we originally budgeted for. This is true in almost every renovation project, so get started now!

If you are planning a kitchen renovation, Carl Borgstrom of Mouat's Trading advises that the design, order and install process for cabinets and countertops can take 6 to 8 weeks. Call Carl and let his cabinetry expertise help make those plans and dreams into a beautiful new kitchen reality, just in time to start your Christmas baking!

Examples of eligible expenses for the new tax credit include: renovating a kitchen, bathroom, or basement; installing new windows, doors, or flooring; building an addition, garage, deck, shed, or fence; installing new furnace, woodstove, fireplace, water softener, or water heater; a new driveway or resurfacing a driveway, re-shingling a roof or painting of a house; landscaping - new sod, perennial shrubs and flowers, trees, etc.; Swimming pools (permanent - in-ground and above-ground); fixtures - blinds, shades, shutters, awnings, lights, fans, etc.; associated costs such as permits, professional services, equipment rentals, and incidental expenses.

Examples of non-eligible expenses include furniture, appliances, tools, and audio and visual electronics; routine repairs, maintenance and cleaning (e.g., furnace cleaning, snow removal, lawn care, pool cleaning, house cleaning) and financing costs.

For more information on the Home Renovation Tax Credit, go to www.cra.gc.ca/hrtc or call 1-877-959-1-CRA.

No matter what type of project you decide on there is nothing more enjoyable than having a new, fresh space to live or work in.

You don't have to spend a fortune to create a new look for your home. It can be as easy as applying a new coat of paint, steam cleaning your carpets and changing your

This is what I was thinking.....

By Tracey Supina

Thanksgiving - A time for tradition

Every year as thanksgiving approaches I get excited thinking of the big family dinner get together. Ever since I was a young girl I remember a big turkey, mashed potatoes, gravy, brussels sprouts, buns and of course the cranberry jelly. When I was a child and my mom made the big Thanksgiving dinner and our cranberry jelly came from a can. Not the berry kind the jelly kind. She use to cut both ends of the can and let the jelly slide onto the plate and she would follow the lines on the jelly from the can it was contained in and slice it. (Good Grief)

It wasn't until I was a bit older and started cafeteria aka home economics that I figured out there were actual cranberries (not just for decoration) and recipes for them, wow now I was on a mission. I made so many variations of cranberry sauce it was never the same twice. My mom still served her jelly from the can and I served my cranberry sauce. My biggest fan was and always will be my Dad. I am sure the first few experiments over the years were a struggle, but he, without blinking, would take a big helping to accompany his turkey. I actually think he needed the turkey to choke it down sometimes.

It is a time of a great get together of family and friends. Over the years it was one of the most important family meals and holidays. To this day it is still so very important to me, I have a big family of my own, and love to cook, so now it is a toss up, my parents place or mine for our thanksgiving feast. Wel true to form my Mom still buys her cranberry jelly by the can and does the same thing to it every year we all stop now and watch her slice it on the lines. Every Thanksgiving tradition that makes your meal special I say embrace it, make new ones, invite someone who is left out of their own thanksgiving get together for some reason or another. I find your own family comes up with better stories if someone else is added to the mix. Here is one of my favorite cranberry sauce recipes I would love to take credit for it, but found it online quite a few years ago. Enjoy and Happy Thanksgiving.....

Spicy Cranberry Sauce

- 1 Tbsp. Vegetable oil
- 2 cups fresh or frozen cranberries (8oz)
- 1 Tbsp. minced fresh ginger
- 2 cups Pinot Noir or other dry red wine (a wine you enjoy drinking so you can have a glass while making this fabulous dish)
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 tsp. Curry powder

Large pinch of Chinese five-spice powder (you can buy it anywhere)

Heat oil in large saucepan over medium-high heat. Add cranberries and fresh ginger; stir until cranberries begin to burst, 3-5 min

Add wine and sugar; boil until mixture is reduced to 2 1/2 cups, 15min.

Add curry powder and Chinese 5 spice powder

Serve cold or warm. With your fantastic Thanksgiving dinner. I have even served it over goat cheese and served it with crackers for an appy.

Canada's Environmental Politics: The Tragedy of Delay

by Ray Grigg

Critics who are frustrated with the slow movement of governments to address the issue of "global warming" and "climate change" suggest that the consequences of rising levels of atmospheric carbon dioxide should more aptly be called "global heating" and "climate crisis".

In a world where words make a difference by casting their long shadows of connotation, perhaps more threatening terms would incite a greater sense of urgency. "Warming" seems so harmless. Like being cuddled into a cosy bed, it has no suggestion of the fire smouldering beneath it. And "change" is too vague. It could be associated with the newest must-have fashion instead of weather havoc, searing temperatures, burning forests, rising oceans, spreading deserts and collapsing food supplies.

Denial is a common reaction in politicians if they can't reconcile the enormity of climate change with their economic and social philosophies < some might even find the problem too big for their theologies and imaginations. But nature is indifferent to political agendas or election cycles. For the record, 20 years have passed since NASA scientist James Hansen warned the US government that climate change was occurring. And 37 years have passed since the concern first appeared in The New York Times . The earliest warning about the dangers of industrial CO2 emissions came from the Swedish scientist, Svante Arrhenius, in 1896.

In Canada, global warming was acknowledged more than a decade ago by the Liberal government of Jean Chrétien but only symbolic and inept steps were taken to address it. Canada supported and ratified the Kyoto Protocol and its emission targets but did essentially nothing to meet its obligations. Another Liberal government, under Paul Martin's leadership, carried on with the same do-nothing tradition.

In a bold step backwards, the Conservative government under Stephen Harper has essentially repudiated the Kyoto Protocol and, like some exercise in ideological cleansing, last year erased all record of the agreement from its web sites. Then, in a gesture of Orwellian thought control, it muzzled federal scientists from making any unapproved announcements about their environmental findings. Furthermore, at a time when the window of opportunity to effectively address global climate change is quickly narrowing, Canada has eliminated about a billion dollars from mechanisms to increase energy efficiencies and to decrease greenhouse gas emissions.

The Conservative government cut EnerGuide, a program that 300,000 Canadians had already used to reduce household energy consumption and could potentially reduce total household demand by an additional 30% < conservation of energy, incidentally, is the cheapest and cleanest solution. The government has also slashed the greenhouse gas mitigation programs of Environment Canada by 80%. It has withdrawn a $538 million contribution from Ontario's efforts to phase out its dirty, coal-fired electrical generation plants, an effort that could have reduced carbon dioxide emissions by 30 million tonnes < the equivalent of removing 7 million cars from our roads. And it continues to fund grain-based bio-fuels, a strategy that might be helpful to voting farmers but increases food prices, causes food scarcity, and likely has negative greenhouse gas benefits.

In a bold but tardy leap into the 21st century, Canada's federal government now seems willing to acknowledge that climate change is actually occurring because it has proposed a "made-in-Canada" solution in place of its Kyoto Protocol commitments. When the obstinate Bush administration in the United States was mercifully replaced by an enlightened Obama administration, Canada's own solution seems to have been transformed into a "made-in-America" one < ecosystems do not recognize political procrastination as valid environmental strategies. With an obstructionist George W. Bush no longer in the White House, Canada's Prime Minister is looking more and more like an environmental anachronism.

While Canada's governments have been dithering, its citizens have been trying to be proactive. Quebec has decided to try to meet the Kyoto objectives, as have many of towns and cities across the country. In America, a dozen states and numerous cities and environmental groups were successful in asking the US Supreme Court to rule that the Environmental Protection Agency must consider carbon dioxide a polluting gas whose emissions must be controlled under the federal Clean Air Act. In Canada, environmental organizations are reverting to court action to move a recalcitrant federal government toward more responsible ecological action. But moving the country forward on a meaningful environmental agenda is difficult without the overarching vision and encouragement of a federal government.

Just acknowledging environmental problems is a huge enough challenge because the root causes are deeply entrenched in values and behaviours that may not be immediately apparent to us. And the momentum of communal behaviour that gives stability and cohesion to a society resists the destabilizing effect of new insights. Environmental warnings require us to respond with different values and new behaviours that are usually met with reflexive resistance. We need political leaders who are brave, committed and convincing < leaders who will lead rather than follow.

But we don't have time to dither. The complexities and the basic mechanisms of our environmental problems are looking more pervasive and more serious each time we look. Yes, this is spooky stuff. And yes, it's profoundly disturbing. It's not what anyone wants to know. But it is reality. And if we are going to move toward solutions, we have no choice but to confront the sobering evidence. And to do this, we need bold and courageous governments.

Author Ray Grigg writes a weekly environmental column, Shades of Green, which is published regularly in the Campbell River North Islander.

SALTSPRING SOLILOQUIES

Have I Told You Lately?

By Jim Anderson

The seasons wander away and the torch of autumn rages like a running flame through the trees. It is harvest time again and the crisp mornings herald the too soon departure of summer sun and the harbinger of coming winter. Here on Saltspring it is time for Thanksgiving again. Thanksgiving is a time for celebration, a time for giving thanks for what we have been blessed with. Time to drop the tools, lock up the store, flee from the labours of life and steal away to the warmth of home. Finding sanctuary there from a ruthless and desperately troubled world.

Our lives are so consumed with surviving. All of us work our lives away, locked into harness and drudgery. Imprisoned in that wretchedly hopeless bargain of selling the time of our lives just to live. It is simply a contract for fools, and we submit to it for really only one reason. We toil for survival, but we stand and stay for love. Love for our children, our soul mates, our dependents and the special ones who make our lives worth living. It is the way it has always been.

And love never makes any sense. It is a fire that escapes all logic and reason. Beyond the faulty machinery of our rational minds it dominates and consumes our lifetimes in a dimension and passion that we never truly understand. When it happens it just sweeps you away. It can whisper of heaven, and it can hurt like hell. We can give everything we have and are to it, and it still stands there in the sunlight...laughing at us and asking for more. We talk of true love and unconditional love, but the harsh truth is that all of us are broken and imperfect and can never really appreciate and honor the glory and the mystery of what love could truly be. Like wounded animals we give what we can, but it is never enough.

Jim Anderson is a writer living on Saltspring. He is working on a metamorphosis of the human mind. © 2005 by Jim Anderson, Saltspring Island Life wears us down, tears us apart and hurts us deep. All of us carry scars and pain within us, and strive always to hide mortal agony and fear. Some of us have suffered the ultimate abomination of being violated and our beings and spirit fractured when we were small and helpless and so terribly vulnerable. Secret abuse and incest destroys and haunts a lifetime and steals the most precious gifts we were born with. It locks us into a prison where we cannot set free the trust, the love and the joy that is tragically buried in the quicksand of fear and secrecy.

Beneath the surface always, for human beings, the truth is that it is love that centers and fulfills our lives. But like water in the desert, it is so rare and hard to find.

But love can find us all. Sometimes we stumble upon it when we least expect it, and when we have given up hope. Then, in a torrent of emotion, sunlight streams into dark and dreadful blackness and we are incredibly blessed and lucky enough to get a slight grasp of what universe means, and why we were born. Imperfect and broken as we are, the lesson of love can resurrect us and make us feel alive again. We don't understand it, but Damn can it make our lives shine.

In our human world as rare and priceless as it is to discover, finding that love is just the beginning. Keeping it alive is the truly hard part. We cherish and cling to that mysterious force that in the end gives our lives meaning and light. Gathering together to celebrate these unforgettable and eternal moments gives us time to truly appreciate those who have given us love...those that make our world.

"There's a love that's divine
And it's yours and it's mine
And it shines

Like the sun...like the sun.
At the end of the day
We should give thanks and pray
To the One...

And say.
Have I told you lately that I love you?"

visit www.patrickarundell.com

Bi-weekly horoscope contributed by Patrick Arundell. Visit his website at www.patrickarundell.com for more great features... see below.

ARIES Mar 21st - Apr 20th

The good news is that as this week comes to a close, the tense stand off between Saturn and Uranus will begin to wane, yet there may still be unexpected issues, or unresolved tensions which need confronting. Fortunately, the Full Moon can aid your progress, as can a brisk Mercury/Mars link. But be prepared to listen to others, as well as speak out.

TAURUS Apr 21st - May 21st

October is an astral month which is going to examine the very basis of your existence. And this can be a background factor for the next couple of years. This week, although there can be some jolly interludes, there can also be work stresses or a sense of being run down or below par. Give yourself a lifestyle audit. If you're in denial, it's time face it!

GEMINI May 22nd - Jun 21st

There can be lots of opportunities for fun this month, but someone close to you may not approve, particularly if they feel you are taking your eye off work or spending too much time in the pursuit of pleasure. Yet life is for enjoying, so be positive. However, this week good time management is essential. Someone can easily feel that you're neglecting them.

CANCER Jun 22nd - Jul 23rd

Mars, in your zodiac sign still, continues to make a fine link to the speedy Mercury. This can give you the gift of the gab - great if you want to get chatting to someone new and desirable, or make an impression on the job front. Yet let sincerity remain your guiding principle. If you don't feel comfortable with a situation, respect and react to this Cancer.

LEO Jul 24th - Aug 23rd

October is set to be busy, with lots of comings and goings. Yet to make sure that you don't scatter yourself too thinly you need to prepare yourself a plan. It doesn't need to be set in stone and you can make changes to it as the weeks go by, but if you don't you may find yourself feeling pulled in several directions all at once, and ending up stressed out.

VIRGO Aug 24th - Sep 23rd

At your best, you can be very self-disciplined, but this is a week and month, when you may decide that a treat or ten are in order. That's fine if you have the extra income to pay for these, but if you don't, any impulse purchases you make will soon lead to a distinct case of buyers remorse. Make sure all your financial obligations are bang up to date.

LIBRA Sep 24th - Oct 23rd

This can be one of the most important times you have experienced for a very long time indeed, with October packed full of particularly important events for you Libra. This week, someone close to you may demand your attention, but you may be preoccupied with worldly or work moves and be very determined to make them count. Try to stay sensitive.

SCORPIO Oct 24th - Nov 22nd

Is it true that you are secretive, or is it an astral myth? Either way, things can have a habit of coming into the open this week, and throughout October, in a way which you may find a little bit uncomfortable. People could confront you with sides of your nature that you are unaware of or would prefer to keep to yourself. This could be a rude awakening.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 23rd - Dec 21st

This can be a super week for business affairs, and your creativity and flair can get you noticed. However, socially and around friendships, your natural openness may cause a pinch point. If there is someone who has been taking your generosity for granted, you may find yourself heading towards the end of your tether. Do not be too free and easy.

CAPRICORN Dec 22nd - Jan 20th

Your ambitions sector is sparkling all month, but with success often comes sacrifice and if you're spending too much time away from your family, or doing a job just for the money it can lead to a profound sense of dissatisfaction. Then again, watch out for an overbearing type who expects everything on their terms and fails to see your needs.

AQUARIUS Jan 21st - Feb 19th

Differing values over shared finances and/or contracts can be the breeding ground for discontent. Perhaps you need to have a bit of a stand-off in order to find a solution. If someone has been lacking respect for what you bring to a situation you can stand up for your rights. Yet choose your words carefully and only use legalities as a last resort.

PISCES Feb 20th - Mar 20th

Chase up money that is owed to you. Don't take people at face value be persistent in getting what is rightfully yours. Equally try to settle any debts that you have. Feeling that you're on top of all this - even if your budget is tight, will give a sense of being in control. In love, someone very alluring can enter your orbit and you CAN be interested.
